CAMPAIGN HEADS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Confident of Outcome in the Buckeye State.

UP TO THE VOTER TOMORROW

State Manager Neal Predicts Republican Sweep, While Chairman Dye Foresees Democratic Victory—Bitter Fight Waged Over the Governorship—Speculation as to Size of La Follette Vote in Ohio.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—On the eve of the election the managers of the state Republican and Democratic campaigns expressed confidence in the outcome. Statements claiming victory were issued by each.

Clarence J. Neal, state Republican campaign manager, said: "Republicans will sweep Ohio tomorrow by one of the largest votes on record. The most conservative estimate that can be made gives Calvin Coolidge Ohio by 200,000 votes. It is very likely that his plurality will run to 350,000. Former Governor Davis and the entire Republican state ticket, without exception, will poll a vote that will nearly equal the president's. A general assembly overwhelmingly Republican will be elected."

Thomas E. Dye, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, made this prediction: "Governor Vic Donahey will be triumphantly re-elected, and John W. Davis has an even chance to carry Ohio, if our candidates and organization workers get the Democratic vote to the point. Moreover, the governor's majority will be of such sizeable character that he will carry our state ticket and a majority of the legislature to victory. I feel confident that we shall re-elect our six Ohio Democratic congressmen, and we have an even chance to win in the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Twelfth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth districts. If we get the breaks, the Democrats will control the Ohio congressional delegation in the Sixty-ninth congress."

Throughout the state campaign by far the most bitter fight has been waged over the governorship. Not for years have there been so many charges and counter charges of wrong doings in public office as have been hurled back and forth by the rival camps. The wet and dry issue has been to the fore, but the most puzzling one is that brought up by the Ku Klux Klan and anti-klan forces, neither of which has appeared on the surface, but which nevertheless has been apparent throughout the campaign.

Other Contests.

Outside of the gubernatorial fight, the only other battle of consequence for state office is that between Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, and Thomas H. Morrow of Cincinnati, who is trying for the office on the Democratic side. Both Crabbe and Morrow have conducted strenuous campaigns. Crabbe, in his speeches, has almost ignored his opponent, directing his attacks generally upon Governor Donahey's administration of the blue sky department. Other candidates on the state ticket in both parties have been conducting quiet campaigns, now and then appearing on speaking platforms at political meetings. It is conceded generally that those party candidates will win or lose together. They are: For lieutenant governor, Earl D. Bloom, Democrat, and Charles H. Lewis, Republican; secretary of state, Thad H. Brown, Republican, and John Henry Newman, Democrat; auditor, Joseph T. Tracy, Republican, and Daniel J. Butler, Democrat; treasurer, Harry S. Day, Republican, and Hamilton G. Dewese, Democrat.

The most concerted fight on candidates for supreme court judge has been waged by the Democrats against James E. Robinson of Marysville, seeking re-election. The state platform named Robinson specifically for defeat because of his voting to support the Governor Davis reorganization code as an emergency, thereby preventing it from going to a referendum. The other Republican candidate is Reynolds R. Kinkade of Toledo. The Democratic candidates are J. P. Clark of Dayton and W. H. Kinder of Findlay. Harry L. Conn of Van Wert, a Democrat, is opposed for the short term by Nicholas Kline of Cincinnati.

In Ohio the presidential campaign has failed to create the interest it has on many previous occasions as between the Democratic and Republican candidates, but what has been lacking

CAPT. RALPH EARLE, U. S. N.

Offered Presidency of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

In that respect probably has been more than balanced by the independent candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette. That the independent ticket is strong in many counties is admitted by political leaders, who, however, confine their figuring to the probable accumulated total strength of Mr. La Follette and what per cent of his strength is going to come from their ranks. Neither of the old party leaders will concede that La Follette has any chance to carry the state. The Wisconsin senator is expected to receive some strength in counties where he has a heavy labor vote.

WATSON MAKES REPORT

Fewer Fatalities in Ohio Mines Expected This Year.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—In a report to Director Herman Witter of the state industrial relations department, Jerome Watson, chief of the mining division, says fatalities in Ohio mines during 1924 will be a third less than last year, if the prevailing rate continues. In the first 10 months 70 miners were killed. Records of 1923 show 130 accidental deaths.

Efforts have been directed by the division, Watson said, to conserve Ohio's coal supply in the many burning mines and a large number of them will be reopened during the next few months, with a hope of finding conditions suitable to fight the flames.

Eight members of the mining division will meet during the week of Nov. 17 at Pomeroy to obtain specific instructions for the most extensive first-aid and mine-rescue campaign has far conducted in the state. The following week the remaining nine members of the division will meet at Cambridge for similar instructions.

THREE PARTIES SEE VICTORY

Candidate and Campaign Managers Make Statements.

GRAMBLE FOR VOTES ENDED

Citizens to Go to the Polls Tomorrow and Register Their Choice For President and Vice President of United States—Coolidge, Davis and La Follette Forces Claiming the Election—The Outlook.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Voters of the United States will go to the polls tomorrow and register their choice for president and vice president.

The voters in many states also will be called upon to choose new state officials and to express their approval or disapproval of proposed state constitutional amendments and a variety of other propositions referred to the people by the state legislatures.

Election eve statements made by the rival party managers expressed optimism as to the outcome of the presidential contest. Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee said: "It is my belief that Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes will be elected on Tuesday and that they will have more than 350 votes out of 531 in the electoral college. The issues are clear-cut and I believe the country understands them thoroughly."

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for president, said "the country will elect a congress pledged to progress and remedial liberal legislation." His statement further declares that Senator La Follette has no chance of election, and adds that it is evident that President Coolidge has not been and will not be in accord with the purposes of such a congress as it is said will be elected. Davis also made the charge that the Republicans are trying to buy the election.

Representative Will R. Wood, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, made this prediction: "We will elect not fewer than 248 Republican members of the next house of representatives, and we may elect 265. In a total membership of 435 this will give us a margin of 30 to 47 over a bare majority. Making due allowances for those who, though elected as Republicans, can not be counted on as true adherents to the Republican faith, we will have as a minimum votes more than can be mustered by the combined opposition."

Mr. Davis in his closing argument said his campaign had been an "appeal to reason and to conscience, rather than to prejudice." He added: "First and foremost, I put the stark question of honesty in government. It is one which no political party trusted with power can be permitted to escape. I can not believe that the country will rest content with the statement of President Coolidge that the wonder is not that the corruption involved so much and so many rather than that it was so little and so few."

John M. Nelson, national manager of Robert M. La Follette's campaign for the presidency, said: "The new Progressive party is assured of its first victory in the polling booths of the nation tomorrow. Out of this campaign has come a new permanent, fearless national organization, whose mighty influence for righteousness will be felt in all elections in the future. There will be more Progressive congressmen and senators in the next congress than in any since the Civil war, when greed and privilege first fastened their tentacles on the government. The Republican machine knows that in many of the states the electoral vote it is claiming for Coolidge will surely be cast for La Follette."

Clem I. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, expressed confidence as to the outcome. In 34 states governors are to be chosen. An unusual number of tight gubernatorial races have developed, particularly in sections where the Ku Klux Klan has become a local issue. There has been a further complication of state politics, particularly in the west, by joint endorsement of certain candidates by the La Follette group and one or the other of the old parties.

NILES RIOTING TO BE PROBED

Governor Orders Investigation of the Cu break.

WOULD PUNISH INSTIGATORS

Donahey Would Ascertain Reason of the Breakdown of Civil Control in Order That Official Dereliction, If Any, May Be Punished—Liquor Plaintiffs on the Day of the Rioting. Troops Patrolling Streets.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—An investigation to place the blame for the outbreak at Niles has been ordered by Governor Donahey.

The governor would have the causes of the breakdown of civil government there in order that official dereliction, if any, may be punished.

In a letter to Major General B. W. Hough, in command of state troops at Niles, Donahey said: "Civil authorities had ample warning and time to prepare for the threatened danger. They failed. The reason for the breakdown of civil control must be ascertained and official dereliction, if any, punished, as well as justice meted out to the criminal assailants against law and orderly society. While peace and order have been restored by the military forces, the episode has not ended so far as the courts and the governor of the state are concerned. Perpetrators of this outrage against the fair name of the city of Niles and the state of Ohio must be punished in a speedy, impartial and judicial manner after careful, searching and complete investigation."

The inquiry started by special investigators sent to Niles Tuesday has revealed that whisky flowed like water in the city until 2 p. m. Saturday, when martial law was put in force, the governor said. Immediately upon arrival of General Hough, orders were issued for an intensive search for liquor and firearms. Although it was acknowledged there would have been trouble, liquor or none, the governor's investigators said they believed moonshine, sold freely to everyone who had the price, and much of it given away to those who didn't, added to the flames. It was also indicated that civilian officials did little, if anything, to prevent the sale of intoxicants. With its 60 per cent foreign population, Niles never has known the real meaning of prohibition, those in touch with the situation declare. Officers of Niles said they were powerless to enforce this law.

General Hough ordered Mayor Harvey C. Kistler, Sheriff John E. Thomas and County Prosecutor Harvey Burgess to military headquarters in the city hall for a conference. All promised to make a real attempt to discover and prosecute the persons responsible for Saturday's rioting.

Niles is still patrolled by troops. All have left save 600 men and 70 officers, units from Warren, Youngstown and Akron.

The list of wounded as a result of the riots was increased to 13 when sentinels found Owen Skully, 63, of Niles. On being revived, Skully said he had been assaulted by three men. The two persons most seriously wounded in the rioting are E. G. Victor of Farrell, Pa., and Ellsworth Keyser of Youngstown.

PURE DRINKING WATER

Seal of Safety Placed on More Than 800 Wells in Ohio.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—Engineers of the state department of health have examined more than 800 wells along the main traveled highways of Ohio during the last few months, in what is known as the "seal of safety" campaign to assure safe drinking water at all public sources of supply.

The campaign began in November, 1923, when W. H. Dittoe, chief sanitary engineer of the department, outlined the plan to the third Ohio conference on water purification. An actual beginning was made late in February, when engineers were assigned to field operations. The first well sealed was at the Columbus storage dam on the Scioto river, where considerable ceremony marked the placing of the seal.

"Water supplies that are being examined and listed in the campaign ordinarily are found," according to Dittoe, "in communities not provided with public water supplies distributed under pressure. Two general classes of this type include, in the first group, centralized schools, colleges and universities, country clubs, hotels, inns and factories, and in the second, supplies generally developed by a hand pump."

INDEPENDENTS LOSE

Denied Permission to Have Challengers in Election Booths.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—Ohio supreme court refused Ohio progressive-independents permission to have challengers and witnesses in election booths by a 4 to 3 vote. Judges Robinson, Day, Matthias and Jones, all Republicans, voted in favor of the ruling, Chief Justice Marshall, Republican, and Judge Allen, independent, and Conn. Democrat, dissenting and furnishing a minority opinion.

The ruling of the four judges held that since the organization asking the right was not selected through vote of the people in the primary election, it was not entitled by law to station challengers, since this right, by law, is given only to county executive committees which are elected by the people.

Judges in the dissenting opinion held that sections of the law cited in the majority opinion bear only on the organization of committees of political parties which are governed by the law relating to primary elections.

Fourteen replies, it was said, were received from Republican national committees endorsing the resolution, while the replies of William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee; Roy O. West, secretary of the Republican committee; C. Hascom Slemple, secretary to the president, and others were described as "noncommittal."

Relationship Between Color and Your Income

When you make your decision upon what is "your color," observes a writer in the Kansas City Star, undoubtedly you consider your eyes, your hair, your skin, and perhaps even the psychological effects the color has on your moods. But do you consider your income?

If you do not, not only are you likely to have a depleted bank balance and a worried expression, but the very colors you choose as "yours" are likely, by some malicious magic, to become both unsuitable and unbecoming.

Suppose, for instance, it is some bright shade which you have selected as pre-eminently suited to your looks and personality. Now, if your income is such that you cannot afford plenty of other and milder-colored clothes, to offset the ones of the favored "loud" color, your friends are going to tire of that color quickly; and the chances are that, after a time, you will even cease to appear attractive in it—at least to those who see you wear it daily.

Prominent stripes, plaids and checks come in the same class of conspicuous clothing as do striking colors. You can appear attractive season after season in a conservatively-toned gown, say of blue, black, brown or dark green, where you would soon become a tiring object to the eye if you appeared throughout a single season in a bright red, or brilliant green checkered sports suit.

Again, the color considerations of the women whose income is limited should concern lightness, as well as brightness, of shade. It is obvious that, since light clothing appears soiled much more quickly than dark clothing does, too much of it in the wardrobe of the average woman is an unwarranted expense, as it entails constant cleaner's bills.

Only if you have enough money to keep light, easily soiled clothes continually at the cleaner's, and to discard clothes of which you or your friends have become tired, you can disregard the otherwise important relationship between color and your income.

Evening Coats Promise to Be Favorite Style

Evening coats will be more popular than capes, according to a prominent fashion writer. Gold metal embroidery trims many of these. Sometimes the sleeves are embroidered, the rest of the wrap remaining plain.

Many of the suit-coats, which extend within ten inches of the hem of the frock, have three rows of fur banding placed at intervals about the bottom of the coat. Sleeves of the coats are generally rather snug-fitting from shoulder to wrist, and are finished with four or five-inch cuffs of fur. Upstanding collars of fur will be popular.

Gifts for the Bride

The girl who contemplates being married, and is busy with her trousseau, will be interested in the linen strips that are meant to hold one's linens in neat piles. These strips tie with tapes and are cross-stitched with floral designs and the name of the article they are meant to hold, such as "towels," "pillow cases" and "sheets."

Worn in New Manner

A number of smart women, wearying of the multiplicity of glass bangles, now have adopted the two-bracelet idea. The two bracelets match, and one is worn above the left elbow, the other on the left wrist.

FORCED SHARK TO CARRY HIM ASHORE

Pearl Diver Rode Monster and Lived to Tell It.

There is a remarkable shark story in Mr. Frederick O'Brien's "Atolls of the Sun." An old pearl diver, addicted to rum, named Huri-Huri, was diving in the lagoon of Rangiroa, and a native thus describes his experience:

He was all alone in his canoe, and was in deep water. He had gone down several times, and had in his canoe four or five pairs of shells. He looked again and saw another pair, and plunged to the bottom. He had the shells in his sack and was leaving the bank when he saw, just above him, a shark so big that, as he said, it could have bitten him in half as a man eats a banana. The shark thrust down its nose toward Huri-Huri, and he took out his shells and held them against the beast. He kept its nose down for half a minute, but then was out of breath.

He was about to die, he believed, unless he could reach the air without the shark following him. He threw himself on the shark's back and put his hands in the fish's gills, and so stopped or partly stopped the shark's breathing. The shark did not know what to make of that, and hurried upward, headed for the surface by the diver. Huri-Huri was afraid to let go even there, because he knew the mao would turn on him and tear him to pieces. But he took several long breaths in the way a diver understands and still held on, and tore the shark's breathing places.

Now the shark was angry and puzzled, and so rushed to the bottom again, but with the man on his back. The shark had not been able to enjoy the air at the top because he breathes water and not air. Huri-Huri closed his gill openings, and piloted him, and so he came up again and again descended. By pulling at the gills the shark's head was brought up and he began to rise. All the time, Huri-Huri was thinking hard about God and his own evil life. He knew that each second might be his last one in life, and he prayed. He thought of Iona (Jonah), who was saved out of the shark's belly in the sea, when Christ was born, and he asked Iona to help him.

Up and down they went for half an hour, the shark's blood pouring out over Huri-Huri's hand as he, minute after minute, tore at the gills. Now he could direct the shark any way, and often he guided him toward the beach of the lagoon. The shark would swim toward it, but when he felt the shallow water would turn. But after many minutes, the shark had to stay on top altogether, because he was too far gone to dive, and finally Huri-Huri steered him right upon the sand. Huri-Huri fell off the mao (shark) and crawled up farther, out of reach of him. The fish could barely move his tail when the watchers on the shore reached it, and every bit of skin was rubbed off the diver's body, for the shark's body is as rough as a file, but the diver lived to become a deeply religious man.

Venerable Juniper Tree

A juniper tree believed to be not less than 3,000 years old is still standing in the Cache National forest in Utah. The diameter of it at breast height is 7 feet 6 inches, and it is 42 feet tall. Experts who have examined the heartwood have found that the first two inches of growth took 200 years. Later the tree grew at the rate of two inches in 60 years.—Youth's Companion.

Underwood Fleecing the Taxpayers and the Government.

M. G. Underwood, Democrat candidate for congress, is now sending out Farmers' Bulletins under his frank, free of postage, and a personal letter from him at the expense of the taxpayers of this district and the country.

These bulletins should have been distributed almost a year ago. He has kept them away from the farmers and schools of the district in order to use them as campaign material and is just now at this late hour, sending them out to the people of the district.

He has been sending out what he designated as a speech, which he pretends to have made upon the floor of the house (which, in fact, he did not make, but the most of which he wrote in his office). This speech was sent out to the people of the district with a personal letter, free of postage.

There are about 80,000 voters in this district, and by sending out his political propaganda under his frank, without paying any postage thereon, Mr. Underwood has caused a loss to the government and the taxpayers of about $3200.

What has become of the Agricultural Yearbooks of 1923, that he received for distribution to the people of this district and the books on the Diseases of Cattle and the Diseases of Horses, for all of which congress made appropriations of the people's money, in order that the farmers of the district and country might receive these books from their congressman?

WHO IS, IN FACT, FLEEING THE TAXPAYERS AND THE GOVERNMENT?

A Record of Accomplishment Worthy of Our Support.

The people of the Eleventh Congressional district ought to know the value of a real congressman. This district was ably represented by Edwin D. Ricketts in the congress of the United States. No complaint has ever been made, either by Democrats or Republicans, as to the quality of the service that he rendered.

Everybody knows that he made one of the best representatives that Ohio has ever sent to congress. Never were the people of this district so well represented. Never were their interests better looked after. He cheerfully responded to every demand made upon him. He was able to do things and did them. Both in private life and as an official in congress he has always been kind and generous to the poor. He has always taken a delight in helping those who needed help. The same charitable attitude that he displayed in his private and professional life was exemplified in his official service. He certainly was the friend of the common people.

Here are some of the things he accomplished as our representative in congress: He procured appropriations of $48,000 for the federal postoffice building in Logan.

He was successful in having Camp Sherman named as one of the three cantonments in the United States to be retained as permanent military posts.

He was able to secure the Vocational Training schools for Camp Sherman for the training of disabled soldiers of the World war.

He secured the necessary appropriation to maintain the Vocational Training school at Camp Sherman.

He secured an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the construction of a federal hospital at Camp Sherman.

Mr. Ricketts helped to frame the Federal Roads bill, and worked incessantly to secure the passage of the same on June 11, 1916, and the amendments thereto, on November 9, 1921. Under the provisions of this act Ohio has received $20,500,000 from the government for the construction and improvement of roads.

The Eleventh Congressional district has received, under the provisions of this law, the sum of $817,300, distributed among the counties composing the district as follows:

Fairfield county .....$221,800
Hocking county .....253,500
Pickaway county ..... 102,500
Perry county .....183,000
Ross county .....51,500

He distributed:
6,332 Agricultural Yearbooks,
180 sets of the Congressional Record,
584 books on Diseases of Horses,
590 books on Diseases of Cattle
200,000 Farmers' Bulletins,
1,029 United States maps,
145,000 packages of garden seed,
23,000 packages of flower seed,
1,800 packages of special field seeds
500 packages of lawn grass seed,
1,800 packages of bulbs,
500 shrub and hedge plants,
Thousands of copies of Departmental Reports, bulletins of the Bureau of

Important for Radio

Most people, when they buy radio sets, put up the best aerials they can. Few, though, bother much about their ground connection. Now the "ground" is almost as important an aid to good reception as the aerial, says Popular Science Monthly, and for this reason you should spare neither pains nor trouble in supplying it.

If possible, it should be a special iron pipe, or plate, buried in the ground a few feet from the house, and it should be as close to your receiver as you can get it. In other words, the lower floor of the house is the best location for a radio set and the ground connection should be made direct, not through a complexity of water pipes.

MONUMENT TO FIRST PREACHER

Towns of Black Hills Honor "Preacher Smith."

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Elaborate exercises marked the dedication of a monument to Rev. Henry Weston Smith, known as "Preacher" Smith, who was the first "sky pilot" to enter the Black Hills after the discovery of gold. The monument, which was erected with funds contributed by the people of the different cities and towns in the Black Hills, stands near the exact spot, three miles from Deadwood, where "Preacher" Smith was killed by Indians on August 20, 1876.

At the time of being killed he was on his way from Deadwood to Crook City, a town of the district, to preach. It was a curious coincidence that "Preacher" Smith and "Wild Bill" Hickok—men representing the two extremes of society—should die violent deaths in the same month, "Wild Bill" having been assassinated by John McCall on August 2, 1876, while seated with other men in a Deadwood saloon playing cards.

"Preacher" Smith lived in a log cabin in Deadwood, and before departing for his ill-fated trip to Crook City he had written the following words on a card, which he fastened to his cabin door: "Gone to Crook City to preach, and if God is willing, will be back at three o'clock."

Killed by Indians.

He never returned alive, for at about 10 o'clock that morning he was killed by Sioux Indians on the top of what was known as Big Hill, over which the crude road to Crook City wended its way. Information of the killing of the "sky pilot" created intense excitement among the rough-and-ready element then making up the population of the young Deadwood, which at the time was termed the wildest mining camp in the world.

A posse was quickly formed by heavily armed men, who started out to punish the Indians. Members of the posse had several skirmishes with the Sioux raiders that same afternoon, killing several of them, but themselves losing five of their men. When members of the posse made their way back to Deadwood, where the body of the slain "sky pilot" had been taken, they found "Calamity Jane," a noted frontier woman, and "Kitty" Arnold, a familiar character in Deadwood in the early days, laying out the body of the dead clergyman in his cabin for burial. "Calamity Jane" said, with tears streaming down her face:

"Isn't it too bad that the only man who came here to tell us how to live had to be killed by the Indians?"

Preached in Saloon.

On one occasion "Preacher" Smith, on invitation of the proprietor, held religious services in the saloon and gambling den of "Nutshell Bill," an early Deadwood character. "Nutshell Bill" had shoved back his tables for the occasion. All was orderly and quiet during the time "Preacher" Smith was preaching his sermon to the assembled roughs and others, who contributed liberally to him in cash at the conclusion of his remarks.

Some men entering the Black Hills had permitted "Preacher" Smith to accompany them, and one evening one of them found him reading a Bible. Then the stranger informed the men that he was a Methodist minister. He was told that he was up against a hard proposition, to which he replied: "Possibly so, but I will do the best I can." His only baggage when he entered the Black Hills was a small valise. He was a man about six feet tall and of fine physique. His age at the time he reached Deadwood was about forty. He came West from the New England states to preach the gospel among the rough men of that day.

Mr. Butterfly Likes Booze, but Wife Sticks to Water

London, England.—That male butterflies like to get drunk while female ones shun liquor and are perfectly content with water as a beverage is the discovery of Zoologist Sutt after experiments along these lines.

He kept all sorts of butterflies in his wire-screened garden and exposed several bowls, containing either pure water or whisky of different brands. The male butterflies invariably took to the liquor bowls and sipped so long that they fell off the brim and rolled on the ground.

The female butterflies, however, behaved, and without exception shunned the alcohol.

Should Be Tender

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—Dan Rhodus, a farmer near here, has kept a ham 47 years. It is one his father, Bascomb Rhodus, put away in ashes in 1877. Rhodus says it is his intention to invite a few of his old friends to take dinner with him in 1927, on which occasion the ham will be served and its fiftieth anniversary appropriately celebrated.

Find Money Buried in '63

Selma, Ky.—While working in a field a few days ago, two young men living in the Ortiz country found $23.05 in silver coins that had evidently been buried many years. There were 42 silver half-dollars, several nickels, dimes and quarters. The pieces bore dates of from 1842 to 1861. The money was evidently buried during the war between the States.

Eagle Beats Express Train.

An express train was beaten by twelve minutes by an eagle which raced it over a distance of eighteen miles. The train was racing at a speed of more than sixty miles an hour, according to the members of the crew.

PUPILS WIN PRIZE

Washington Township Boys and Girls
Make Very Good Showing.

Nearly two hundred people attended the Masquerade party and Box social at the school house Thursday evening. Three prizes were given for the ugliest, prettiest and best costume worn that evening. Miss Dennis, teacher of the seventh and eighth grades, won the prize for the ugliest costume. All the boxes were sold and lunch was served for those not getting boxes by the domestic science class under the direction of Mrs. Barton. Thirty dollars was cleared by the Athletic association during the evening. The auditorium was artistically decorated for the occasion by a committee of students working under the supervision of Miss Grabill.

The Grange had its regular meeting Friday evening and after a short business session. Miss Grabill's division entertained with a splendid program.

The board of education met at the school for its regular meeting this morning and each pupil was presented with a letter to the parents asking that the children be made immune from diphtheria. The letter also asks permission to give the children the Shick test. This test will show whether the child is protected from diphtheria. The test and the injections are harmless. Over three thousand children in Ohio and New York have been treated without a single bad result.

The Food and Clothing clubs of Washington township carried away quite a number of prizes on their exhibits at the Pumpkin Show. Mary Frazier and Priscilla Trimmer won first prizes in sewing. They will take a trip to Ohio State university, as guests for one week. Priscilla Trimmer also won third prize in the Food club. A demonstration on drafting a pattern was given by Bernice Drum and Priscilla Trimmer at the Memorial hall and they received third prize. Other prizes were carried away by Bernice Drum and Lillian Welch. Other pupils winning prizes were Boyd Stout, who received two second prizes, one on sweet potatoes and the other on yams, and little Catherine Kraft, who won a prize on fancy work.

Marjorie Goodman, who has been unable to attend school regularly this year was given a doctor's certificate. This certificate is given all pupils who are physically unable to attend school.

CAVES SHED NEW LIGHT ON ANCIENT AMERICA

Skull and Bones Discovered in New Mexico Resemble Those of Cliff Dwellers.

Washington, D. C.—That the huge Carlsbad caverns of New Mexico, recently rediscovered, were known to the early inhabitants of America is proved by a skull and other human bones, fragments of matting, and wooden implements found by Dr. Willis T. Lee, leader of the National Geographic society expedition which is exploring the caves. The material has just been examined by experts. They find that the skull differs from that of a Pueblo Indian and resembles the skulls of the Cliff Dwellers. The bones were identified as those of a man and a woman.

The matting from the caves consists of well-woven strings and has the appearance of being of Indian manufacture.

The specialists who examined the fragments point out that the occurrence of such material in the caverns does not prove that they were inhabited, since it was customary, even with some nomadic peoples, to lay away the dead in caves. Such natural shelters also were used by early men as temporary camping places.

The National Geographic society, through the expedition led by Doctor Lee, is mapping and photographing the caverns and seeking for entrances that will make them accessible to visitors. President Coolidge several months ago set aside the region containing the caves as the Carlsbad Caverns National monument.

Turks Agitate Sale of Caliph's Treasures

Constantinople.—The question of what is to be done with the treasures of the caliph is occupying front-page space in all Turkish newspapers. These treasures contain some of the most valuable gems in existence.

One group of papers demands that the treasure be sold at international auction, so that the money may become available for reconstructing the country and for relieving distress among the poor.

Until 1916 the treasure was kept in the palace of Top-Kapu. After the present regime succeeded to power it was brought to the mosque of Achmed Pasha at Angora. The treasure includes the gems and works of art collected by the sultans and caliphs through centuries. There are necklaces of rubies and topaz, chains of pearls of priceless value, diadems and crowns of precious stones, goblets and cups of gold and silver, swords and scimitars and pistols set with jewels and the famous saddles of the sultans with diamonds and other precious stones.

Fake Passports for U. S.
Entry Sold in Europe

Paris.—Since the new American immigration law went into effect, Europe has seen an outbreak of attempted passport frauds. So great has been the desire to reach the shores of the United States, on the part of would-be emigrants, that they are easy prey for unscrupulous traffickers in false documents. American consular officers are engaged in running down frauds in Warsaw, Berlin, Hamburg, Brussels and Paris.

A favorite but futile device among Italians has been the "Argentine dodge." The quota from this country into America is far from being exhausted.

Armed with a faked Argentine passport and a faked birth certificate, purchased from swindlers at a cost of $250, many an Italian has seen his hopes fade rapidly under the expert scrutiny of American consular officers.

Black Snake Found at Home in Little Italy

New York.—Sergeant Mittlegrave and Patrolman Delaney were riding in a police department ddiver in Harlem's Little Italy, when their progress was suddenly arrested by a shout of "Snakes!" Excited tenants stopped the patrolmen, who jumped from their automobile and climbed the tenement's stairs until they arrived on the fourth floor in the flat of Tony Pucinien. Coiled under the stove was a black snake, six feet three inches long.

Mittlegrave grabbed the reptile just below the head and Delaney clutched its tail. Then they whisked the snake to the waiting automobile and took it to the East One Hundred and Fourth street station. James Coyle, keeper of the Central park zoo, arrived later and took it to add to his collection.

Western Artist to Have
Years of Wagon Travel

Seattle, Wash.—Sightseeing in a covered wagon, with "Chicago in two years" as the first goal, is the plan of Louis Dana Johnson, a local artist, who has left here with his family on a journey of five or six years.

In a trim gray prairie schooner, Betty Lou, aged two, plays under the shelter of the canvas. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Barbara, aged eleven, hike along the highways. Mr. Johnson expects to "knock off a year" in Chicago to study art. He then will continue to "hit the trail" until he and his family tire of the novelty. The schooner, which he constructed, is fitted with everything necessary for a home and a school.

HELD ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Chauncey Moss and Cecil H. Kurth of Chillicothe, who were up before Judge Adkins in juvenile court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a school girl, Bessie, daughter of Alonzo Lagore, are now being held on another charge. The delinquency charge was not pressed but an affidavit charging them with rape with her consent was placed against both prisoners. They asked that this charge not be pressed until they had secured legal counsel from their home and they were returned to the county jail.

METHODISTS

Had an Enjoyable Time Sunday—Former Pastors Made Addresses.

Sunday was a great day for the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city, the occasion being the re-opening following the repairs and redecoration.

The temple in its new dress of beautifully blended colors looks like quite another structure and all expressed their approval of the pleasing transformation.

The program of the day began with the regular session of the Sunday school and at 10:15 District Superintendent Rev. L. C. Sparks, of Columbus, delivered an inspiring sermon which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

At the noon hour a basket dinner was served in the club rooms of the church and the members and their friends had a most happy time together.

In the afternoon, beginning at two o'clock a very delightful meeting was held and this was addressed by former pastors; Rev. W. D. Cherrington and Rev. A. L. Brokaw, of Columbus and Rev. D. H. Jemison, of Cincinnati and Rev. J. C. Arbuckle of Columbus. The invocation was by Rev. G. B. Work, of this city.

At the evening service, Rev. Arbuckle, a former district superintendent delivered an eloquent, forceful address.

Taken altogether it was a wonderful day for Methodism in Circleville and certainly brought much encouragement to the pastor, Rev. Edwin K. Johnson.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their kindness shown us during our bereavement in the loss of our beloved daughter, also for the beautiful floral tributes of respect for the deceased; especially do we thank Rev. G. J. Troutman for his consoling words, also Mr. Fred C. Clark and Mr. Reinhardt for the efficient manner in which they handled the funeral and their sympathy extended the family.

AMUSEMENTS

Patsy Ruth Miller, featured with Nita Naldi, George Fawcett and Matt Moore in Herbert Brenon's current production for Paramount, "The Breaking Point," has cherished two ambitions all her life. The first to be an actress, has been realized. The second, to be a successful story writer she may yet achieve.

Wherever Miss Miller goes, she carries a little leather covered note book. Like Robert Louis Stevenson, she spends odd moments writing descriptions. Anything which strikes her as worthy goes into her notebook.

"It is just practice writing," says Miss Miller. "My note book is like an artist's sketch book. I am never satisfied with the way I write a sentence and always try to express the same thought in a dozen different ways. It is amazing the variety of shades one can get by shifting a word in a sentence or changing one."

Frequently during the night Miss Miller wakes with a new thought running thru her mind. She always keeps her note book and pencil on a table beside her bed. When she wakes she switches on the light, jots her thought down and promptly goes to sleep again.

"It's exciting in the morning to pick up the book and read what I have written during the night," says Miss Miller. "Frequently I have utterly forgotten and a sentence strikes me with the effect of something entirely new. Story writing is hard but I hope some day to succeed."

"The Breaking Point" is from the pen of Mary Roberts Rinehart. It opens next Monday at the Met theater.

The Truth About the Salary of Clerks to Members of Congress.

An appropriation of $3200 per year is made for the benefit of each member of the house for clerk hire.

M. G. Underwood received $3200 the same as Mr. Ricketts. Both received the same amount. They could pay it to one clerk or they could hire ten clerks if they chose, but they could get no more than $3200.

Statements to the contrary being made by Mr. Underwood in the Democrat-Sentinel and other newspapers and in circulars being distributed by him are only another of his old tricks to deceive the voters of the district.

Mr. Underwood discounts the intelligence of the voters of this district. He fooled them two years ago and he hopes to fool them again by his unscrupulous tactics.

In an emergency during Mr. Ricketts' service, his son assisted him and was on the payroll, openly and above board, and rendered an efficient service to the people of the district. The money paid him for his services came out of the appropriation of $3200 allowed each congressman, for clerk hire, and was not in addition thereto.

During Mr. Ricketts' service in congress, his office at Washington D. C. was kept open to the constituency of the district, and he also had an office in the district for service to his constituency and faithful and efficient service was rendered to all. Mr. Underwood has had his office at Washington D. C., closed a great part of the time and has attempted to transact the business of the district at his law office in New Lexington.

Mr. Underwood, when no emergency existed, had Ann Lincoln on the payroll, who is a resident of the District of Columbia. Why was not the salary she drew paid to somebody in the district? The appointment belonged to this district and not to the District of Columbia. What service she rendered to this district nobody knows, but Mr. Underwood had her on the payroll. WHY?

All this hue and cry about the son of Mr. Ricketts being on the payroll is the cheapest kind of political bunk. Voters, do not be deceived.

PERU AND BOLIVIA PLAN CELEBRATION

Centenary of Overthrow of Spanish Rule.

Lima, Peru.—Peru and Bolivia are preparing for what promises to be the greatest celebration the two nations have had—the centenary of the battle of Ayacucho, the conflict which marked the overthrow of the Spanish yoke and the independence of Peru. For fifteen days, from December 9 until next Christmas day, the governments of both nations will stage the celebration in Ayacucho, the literal translation of which is the "Corner of Death."

Invitations have been acknowledged by almost every European and South American nation, and the United States is to be represented at the fete. The fact that the event is staged at the most desirable period of the winter season, many Americans have already engaged quarters at the leading hotels and will take part in the festivities.

President Legula of Peru has had a staff of officials busy since early in the year, who, aided by the Bolivian officials, have arranged a program of events which will surpass anything attempted in either nation. While the principal features of the program will be staged in Ayacucho, Lima will also be in full dress for the occasion as will be all the other towns throughout the republics.

Anniversary of Battle.

The opening of the celebration will take place December 9, the centenary of the Battle of Ayacucho, a battle compared by historians to the Battle of Yorktown. For as the latter conflict marked the overthrow of the British and the beginning of America's independence, the fight in Ayacucho accomplished liberty for the Peruvians.

A reproduction of the famous battle will be the opening gun of the celebration and Peruvian and Bolivian forces, will be "combatants." After the spoke of "battle" has cleared away a gigantic statue to Marshal Sucre will be unveiled on the battlefield. In addition there will be opened in Ayacucho a memorial pantheon and museum.

The city will be transformed into a fair, and products of the region, including gold, silver, cobalt, copper, cacao, sugar, cotton, tobacco, grain, alfalfa, pottery, cattle and other live stock will be displayed. Just outside the city overlooking the battlefield, an amphitheatre has been erected where flying stunts will be staged and the sports of the nations indulged in. Special quarters, too, are being erected for the housing of army and navy delegations from other lands.

"The Corner of Death."

The city of Ayacucho is derived from the Quechua Indian word meaning "the corner of death." Founded by Pizarro in 1539 as a military colony in the midst of a country filled with discontented and threatening Indians, the settlement helped to maintain communications between Cuzco and Lima. It was strongly fortified.

During the civil wars which broke out among the conquerors, Vaca de Castro, the king's representative, fought young Almagro, the rebel, near Ayacucho, defeating and beheading the half caste son of Pizarro's original partner in the conquest. Later Gonzalo Pizarro, brother of the conqueror, pursued and defeated L. Blasco Nunez, the arrogant viceroy, in Ayacucho, and in 1547 Pedro de la Gasca, Spanish high commissioner, here defeated Gonzalo and then decapitated him.

In 1823, when the independence of Peru, which apparently had been won but two years before, seemed to be lost again, Ayacucho was the scene of a decisive battle against the forces of the Spanish crown. Before the battle Marshal Sucre declared: "On our work today depends the destiny of South America." Bolivar, the Washington of South America, had been called to the sea coast and Sucre's army had been harried and pursued three days by the army of the Viceroy La Serna.

At length the two armies were drawn up on opposing heights. Although the battle opened with reverses for the patriots, it ended in defeat of the royal troops. That same afternoon the surrender was signed and Spain gave up the continent after three hundred years' dominion.

Shake Gold From Coins to Pay for China War

New York.—"How is the petty, impoverished warlord of China able to pay his soldiers, when his exchequer, like that of most of the present military leaders, is dilapidated?"

This question is subject to all sorts of conjecture, but it is certain that "money shaking" is again resorted to with the same vigor that accompanied the Chinese struggles of the past.

Whenever a military leader plans a private war he converts most of his spare money into American gold pieces. This done, he hires squadrons of Chinese coolies, each of whom is given a leather bag containing from $100 to $200 in gold. The coolies for many hours keep up a continuous jingling of their bag-imprisoned coins.

The bombardment of one coin against the other causes microscopic particles of gold to be jarred loose. These particles gradually collect until a sizable pile of yellow dust accumulates. This is carefully poured out and sold. The coins themselves, although slightly worn, are never questioned for their value in the native market.

HOLD-UP ARTIST

J. E. Whitaker Robbed of $1.80 in Little Walnut Creek Bridge.

J. E. Whitaker, of 1289 Dennison avenue, Columbus, reported to Sheriff Young that he was held up on his way home Sunday morning at 1:30 o'clock. The holdup occurred on the Little Walnut bridge near South Bloomfield. The holdup artist, who was driving a Buick car without a license tag, blocked his way in the bridge and ordered Mr. Whitaker to hold 'em up, emphasizing his demand, by poking a gun in Mr. Whitaker's ribs and the latter handed over $1.80, all he had on his person.

Furious Cloudbursts Flood Death Valley

Although little rain falls in Death valley, so named from the terrible loss of life from heat which occurred there in 1873, cloudbursts of the utmost fury are often experienced. The cloud is always formed above the mountains, and after a time its bulbous body strikes a peak. Floods of waters are released on the instant, and in waves of incredible size they roll down the cliffs and canyons.

In an hour the face of a mountain may be so changed as to be scarcely recognizable. Even the lighter storms sometimes rip the heart out of a canyon so that only gulches and heaps of broken rock are found where once, perhaps, a good trail existed.

One night a man named Carter slept in camp near the mouth of Furnace Creek canyon with a "bug hunter," as the desert-tramping scientists are called out there. It was so hot that the naturalist could not sleep.

About midnight he heard a roaring noise up the canyon, which, as it kept increasing in volume, caused him to look that way. To his surprise he saw, as he supposed, the sky between the canyon walls grow suddenly white.

At that moment Carter rolled over, and the "bug hunter" asked him what ailed the sky. Carter gave one glance and shouted:

"Cloudburst! Climb!"

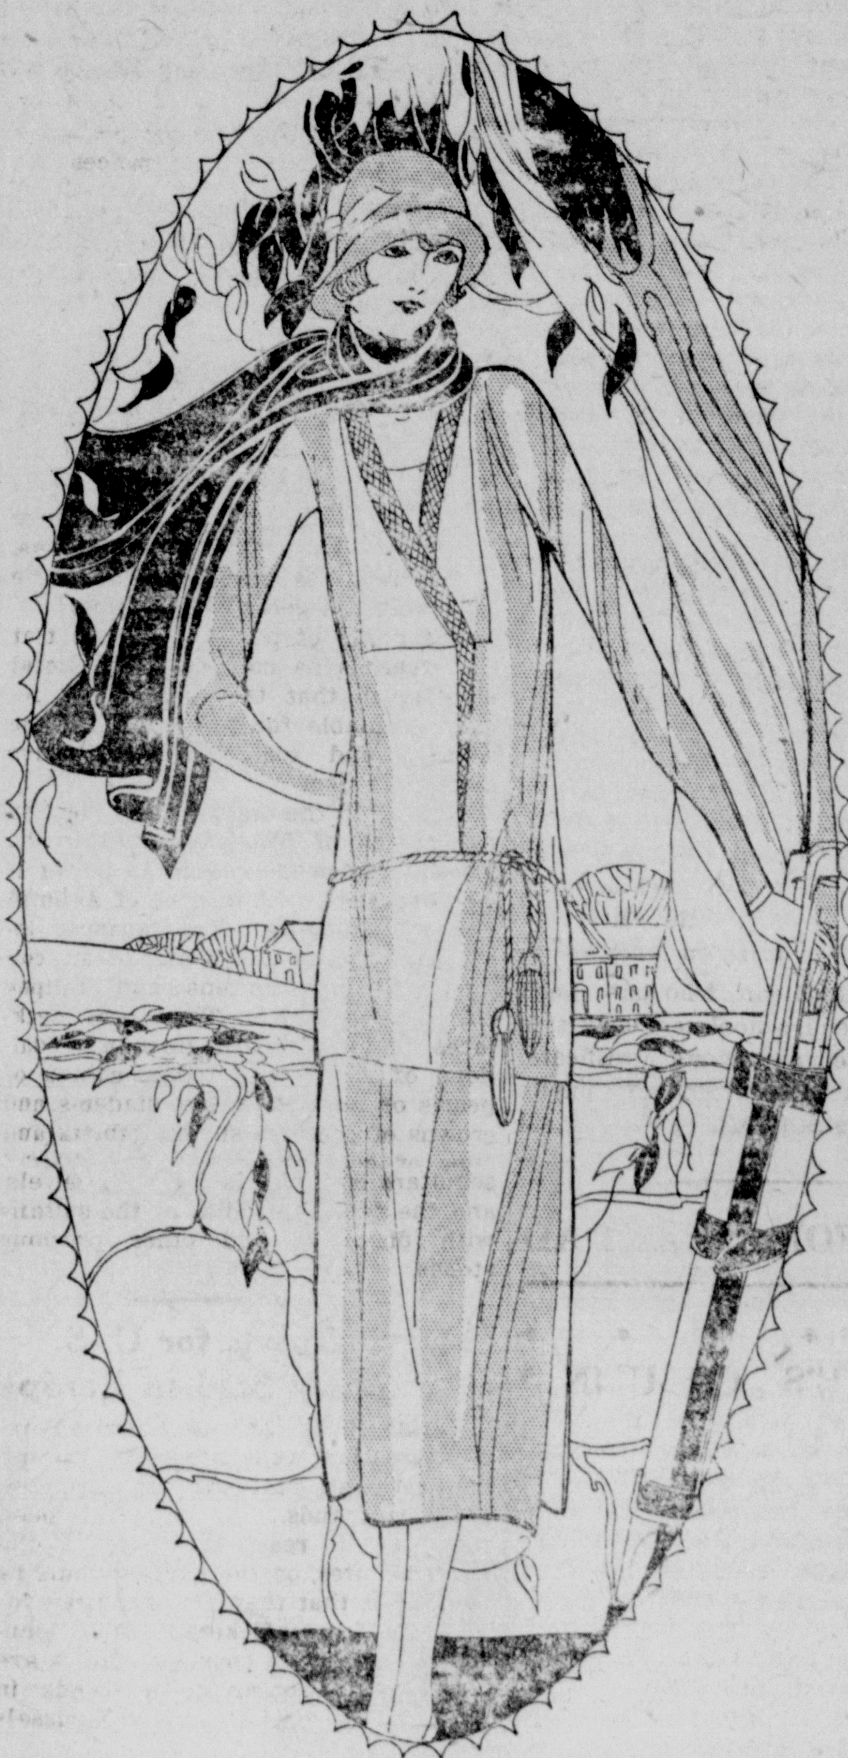

They scrambled up the steep wall as best they could, just in time to save their lives. Carter thinks the foaming wall of water that whitened the sky and swept everything before it was not less than 100 feet high.

Conscientious Marshal

Edward B. Ishem, for 11 years city marshal of Porterville, Cal., and chief traffic officer, had the distinction of arresting himself. He backed his car into the auto driven by Mrs. Wood Sandidge. Some damage was done. The marshal then proceeded to inform himself, "Your fault, and you will have to pay the damages or go to the city hall with me." He paid, then promised himself that he would be more careful in the future.

Work on Omnibus Top

John Payne's biographer says that all Payne's translation of "The Arabian Nights" was done on the tops of omnibuses, says the Detroit News. "Those were the days of horse omnibuses, and passengers by them anywhere in London must often have looked on with perplexity at the foreign-looking nearsighted man—oblivious of the movements and the roar around him—raising now an Arabic manuscript, now a sheaf of flimsy foolscap to his eyes. He boarded the omnibus without troubling where it was going, and got out only when it refused to carry him any further."

For Open-Air Vacation

Spend your vacation out of doors! This is the only guarantee of a happy, healthy vacation, says a writer in Hygeia. Weeks of planning and weeks of saving for a summer holiday are all well spent if the worker can come back to his task with quieted nerves, hardened muscles and a new zest for his job. The best way to accomplish this is to spend as much time as possible in wholesome—not over-strenuous—exercise and in rest, outside of the strange shelters built by man.

Such a holiday is available to every one without extra cost.

MODEL JAIL OF 1877 IS TOUGH JOB FOR WRECKERS

Demolished Stone by Stone on Site
Used for Same Purpose
Since 1689.

Woodbury, N. J.—Prison history is being made here with the wrecking of the present Gloucester County jail in the center of the town to make way for a modern county building at a cost of $300,000, with an up-to-date prison on the third floor. The present structure was considered a model when it was erected in 1877. The site began to be used for prison purposes in 1689.

Gloucester county in that year had a log house as its very first jail, an affair about 16 feet square. This made way for a larger log house jail in 1695, which in turn was torn down and replaced by a jail of masonry in 1719. The specifications provided for a corner chimney at each end, "cross-barred with iron in each funnel to prevent escapes."

In 1763 stocks and a whipping post were provided in the jail yard, and there is a record of new public stocks being ordered erected in the yard as late as 1822. A fire in 1790 destroyed the buildings, and they were replaced at a cost of $12,000, with a notable improvement in the form of a bell for the courthouse.

Finally the present structure was put up at a cost of $22,000 in 1877. It has stone walls two feet thick and 100 tons of iron and steel, with a floor of broken stone and cement, three feet thick. None of the 10,000 prisoners kept there ever broke loose. Dynamite would customarily be used in wrecking a structure of this sort, but owing to the fact that it is located in the heart of the town, with a high school near by, and a bank and the courthouse across the street, the authorities will not permit explosives to be used.

Workmen, accordingly, are breaking the jail apart, stone by stone and rivet by rivet. It is expected the new structure cannot be completed within two years at the present rate of progress. Meanwhile, prisoners are to be kept in the rear of the fire department headquarters. Dangerous criminals will not be risked there, however, but are to be sent to a Camden jail.

In the temporary jail many facilities are lacking. Accordingly every prisoner will be given a small stove, and rations will be served him uncooked, so that he will have to prepare his own meals. The new county and jail building is designed by Charles R. Peddie, Philadelphia architect.

Russian Servants Fare Best Among Workers

Moscow.—American housewives who think their servant problem a difficult one should turn to Bolshevik Russia where housemaids, cooks and pantry workers demand many more privileges than do servants in the United States. In addition to an eight-hour day and one day off each week, servants here have a month's vacation during the year, full insurance, the right to attend trade union meetings whenever they desire, and other liberties.

In Moscow employers must supply their domestics with two dresses a year, two pairs of shoes, four pairs of stockings, half a dozen aprons and numerous other articles.

As a class, Russian servants are now better off than any other category of workers. They draw more salary than skilled workmen, enjoy greater freedom, better food, and superior living accommodations. Their position in present-day Russian life is so strong that special courts have been established by the government to hear their grievances.

British Peer Makes Profits From Laundry

London.—Although the occupations of members of the peerage are many and varied nowadays, Lord Cecil Douglas has shocked the others of his class by opening a laundry under his own name.

Lord Cecil is a brother of the Marquis of Queensberry, and the interest which his business venture has aroused has already been gratifying to the cashier of the establishment.

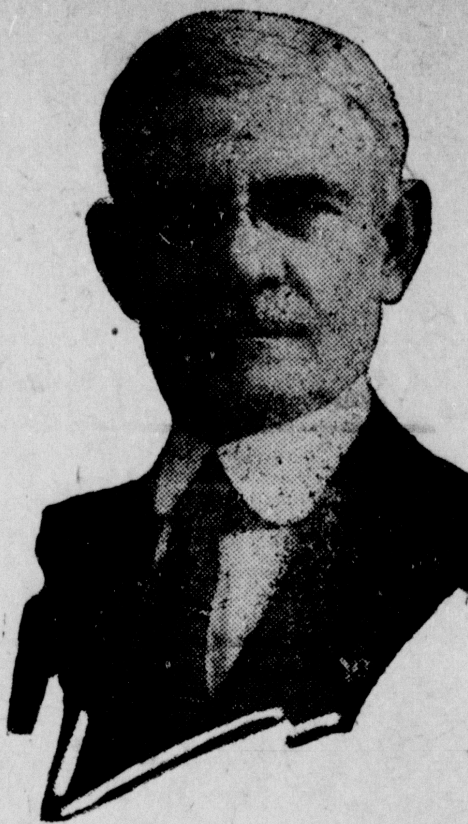

The members of the Queensberry family always have been noted for their versatility. Lord Cecil's father emigrated to America, where he worked on various newspapers; his uncle, Lord Alfred Douglas, was editor of "Plain English"; a great-uncle entered the priesthood, another uncle was a hotel owner, and his grandfather was a patron of boxing and author of the famous "Queensberry Rules."

Life of Christ Written in First Century Found

Naples.—A detailed chronicle of the life and martyrdom of Christ, written in the fifty-eighth year after his birth, has been discovered by the Italian scholar, Mario Di Martino, according to Commander Della, superintendent of the Naples Public Libraries.

Della has forwarded a summarized report of the discovery to the minister of education in Rome. Di Martino's find is not an original work, according to Della, but is a transcription from the original.

The revelation contained in the newly discovered pages of parchment are expected to cause a tremendous sensation throughout the Christian world, as the book is said to reveal many unknown particulars of the life of Christ.

C. C. CHAPPELEAR

Republican Candidate for Re-election to the Ohio Senate

Nothing spectacular is claimed for my work in the general assembly, but it is believed that this service resulted in substantial benefit to the state in general and Pickaway county in particular.

I was the author of and secured the passage of the law providing for the granting of state aid in building bridges and culverts within municipalities when on the line of inter-county highways and main market roads.

The county commissioners made a contract for a culvert over Hargus creek at a cost of approximately $36,000. Under the provisions of the above named law, the state pays one half and this results in a saving of $18,000 to the taxpayers of Pickaway county, and relieves dwellers in the Hargus creek bottoms from the dangers of a flood.

The culvert over this stream is now being built.

Through my efforts an appropriation of $1,500 was secured for the treatment, care and preservation of Logan Elm, now the most famous tree in the United States.

Was the author of the law empowering unincorporated lodges to take, hold and mortgage their real estate, the law requiring the record of births and deaths to be kept in the office of the probate judge, the law authorizing the trustees of Ohio State university to settle and adjust their contractual relations and property rights with the Protestant hospital of Columbus, and other laws, and together with Hon. John M. Vorys, also a Republican candidate for state senator in this district, was the author of the law simplifying and modernizing the statute relative to the exemption of assets in decedents' estate.

Six bills introduced by me in the last session of the general assembly passed both houses and all of the six bills were approved by Governor Donahay.

Two senators are to be elected. There are two Democratic and two Republican candidates. I am the only candidate on either ticket who lives in Pickaway county.

I have no hobbies, and if elected, my only ambition will be to serve faithfully and to the best of my ability all the people of the state and district.

Every citizen should vote. Your vote will be appreciated by me. If you can't vote for me, vote for the other fellow. In any event, don't fail to vote.

C. C. CHAPPELEAR

And this heated fresh air is distributed so uniformly throughout the oven that no matter in what part you place your baking, the same uniform results are certain. No "pot-watching", no shifting pans—the oven ends all this worry.

Hon. Edwin D. Ricketts

Dear Mr. Ricketts:—
I cannot resist the temptation of dropping you a line to tell you that the Farm Bureau Federation has gotten out a list of the favorable and unfavorable votes on agricultural questions in Congress. Your record stands out with such a high percentage of favorable votes that I must again congratulate you and the good people who sent you to Congress on the good record you made.
I am not unmindful of the fact that you are not in Congress at this time, and, of course, as a representative of the Farm Bureau, I must not take part in partisan politics, but I will always be indebted both personally and officially, to those members of Congress who contributed as you have to securing the passage of agricultural legislation during recent years.
With very best wishes, I am,
Sincerely yours,

Collects Data on Truck Experience
Opinions and Information Gathered From Various Parts of Country.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The efficiency of the motor truck as the farm has been the subject of considerable conversation among farmers. When a farmer contemplates the purchase of a machine and is undecided as to its practicability for his use, the experiences of other farmers who have owned and used that particular kind of a machine should be valuable, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Accordingly, the department has gathered the opinions and other more definite information from a large number of motor truck users over various parts of the country.
Outstanding Facts.
Among the outstanding facts suggested by analyzing the data collected may be suggested the following:
The use of a motor truck in many instances enables a farmer to take advantage of better markets at greater distances from his farm than were available when his hauling was done with horses. For those truck owners who have changed markets the distance to the new markets averaged nearly double the distance to those formerly used.
In the area covered by these reports trucks having a capacity of 1 ton comprised nearly half the total number concerning which replies were received, while slightly over half of the owners who in 1922 gave their opinions as to the size best suited for their conditions stated they preferred the 1-ton machines.
Over 90 per cent of the owners stated they believed their trucks would prove to be profitable investments, and that they intended to purchase others when those reported on were worn out.

Advantages of Trucks.
Saving of time was given as the greatest advantage and poor roads as the greatest disadvantage connected with the use of motor trucks.
On the average it requires less than half the time to make a haul of a given length with a truck that it does with horses.
Not all of the road hauling was done with trucks. Over 60 per cent of the owners answering this question stated that they used horses for a small part of their road hauling.
While many owners used their machines for some hauling on the farm itself a large part of such hauling was still done with horses.
A small percentage of the owners stated that they did some custom work, but that it constituted on the average only about one-tenth of the total hauling done with their machines.

Proper Place for Soft Corn Is in Farm Silo

Soft corn can be saved by putting it into a good silo, says Andrew Boss, vice director of the Minnesota experiment station. With very immature corn it is advisable to wilt it before putting it in the silo. This process may require one to three or four days.
"When the corn is cut with a corn binder and thrown off in bundles it may be allowed to lie on the ground for several days without injury," says Mr. Boss. "If it should be frozen and should stand for some time before cutting, the wilting may not be necessary. Where corn is badly dried out after freezing it may be necessary to add water to provide sufficient moisture for the proper curing of the silage."
"If possible the corn should be put in the silo before freezing weather. Frosted leaves soon dry out, the winds blow them off and the loss of feed is large."

Grain Feed for Laying Hens Is Very Important

Laying hens should come off the roost with empty crops, and go to roost with full crops. The first feed in the morning should be grain scattered over the floor in a litter about six inches deep. About one-third of the total grain feed for the day should be fed at this time, and the remainder should be fed in the same manner in sufficient time for it to be cleaned up before the birds go to roost.
The mash can be fed in dry mash hoppers where the birds can have access to it at all times. Should the hens become too fat, this may be remedied by compelling them to take more exercise through reducing the amount of scratch grain and reducing the meat scrap in the rations. No abrupt changes in rations should be made, and, where possible, the same ration should be fed continuously. It does not pay to try to force moulting by abrupt changes in feeding.

Wisconsin Laying Ration

Two distinct rations are fed the poultry flocks at the University of Wisconsin. The scratch feed consists of one part wheat and two of cracked corn. Such feed as barley or oats may replace the wheat. The hens get this ration in a deep litter. The second ration is fed in self-feeders. It is placed where the hens can reach it any time. It is mixed from equal parts of beef scrap, bran, gluten, rolled oats and cracked corn. To each hundred pounds of the mixture one pound of charcoal and salt is added.

Also a Counter Irritant
A feminine newspaper writer says no two people can live together in matrimony without friction and without getting on each other's nerves. But people must marry, and some of them must live together, friction or no friction, nerves or no nerves. It seems to us that under such circumstances children are not only a great help, but necessary.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

Growth of Post Office
Benjamin Franklin was the first head of the postal system of the United States. When he took over the affairs of his office, there were 75 post offices, with an aggregate postal revenue of $30,000 a year. Today we have more than 53,000 post offices and about 300,000 employees. The aggregate revenue collected and expended amounts to about $800,000,000 annually.

Translating the Car Into Local Transportation
THE business of an automobile dealer, as we look at it, is not so much in selling cars as making it possible for a good car to render dependable, economical transportation in the locality where it is in use. This business policy has much to do, we believe, with the enduring satisfaction enjoyed by local folks who buy FORD cars here.

Fault-Finding.

Why should we denounce fault-finding because it is not constructive? All of us are continuously finding fault, more or less, and on our success in finding the fault and destroying it depends mostly our successful development. So in the end it appears that fault-finding is essentially one of our most constructive activities. One of our worst faults is the hypocritical practice of finding fault with fault-finding.—F. H. Young in Providence Journal.

Apple Growing East of the Mississippi

Fundamental Principles Discussed in Bulletin.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The fundamental principles of apple growing are discussed in a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture which treats in particular of apple growing east of the Mississippi river. The fruit grower, says the department, who best understands the principles involved and applies them wisely is the one who usually succeeds because he best meets the conditions of nature with which he contends. There is no "rule of thumb" method of procedure which can be laid down to fit all localities and conditions.

From their inception, says the department, many orchards are doomed to failure or to mediocrity of success only, because they are poorly located with respect to soil, local temperature conditions, or for some other reason which is inherent in the surroundings and which might easily have been avoided had the principles of good orcharding been observed in the beginning.

With the high costs that enter into the development and maintenance of apple orchards, any advantages of site and location and of favorable conditions with respect to regularity of crops, abundant yields and perfection of development of the fruit may make a wide difference in the financial aspects of an orchard enterprise, as compared with one where adverse conditions occur.

The aim of Farmers' Bulletin 1360 is to help the grower in meeting some of the problems of apple orchard planting and maintenance. A copy may be secured upon request, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dairy Products Perfect and Economical Food

It has always been known that milk and other dairy products were very healthful and economical foods, but these facts were not fully realized until scientists made their startling discoveries, within recent years, concerning those mysterious substances known as vitamins, which are contained in milk, butter, etc., and which are absolutely essential to the growth and health of the old as well as the young. Milk and other dairy products are the most perfect of all foods, and the dairy cow is the most economical producer of such food.

Various agencies and organizations, such as the United States Department of Agriculture, national, state and local health organizations, doctors, nurses, etc., the national dairy council and many commercial organizations, have given these facts enormous publicity and advertising, and have educated the public to a greater appreciation and knowledge of the value of dairy products.

Most Important to Keep Sheep Free From Worms

It is most important to keep sheep free from tapeworms. These worms come from ripe segments dropped by infested sheep on the pastures so that old, or permanent, pastures soon become tainted for sheep. Lambs should, so far as possible, have new, clean grass to go on each spring and before turning the ewes and lambs out to graze the ewes should be treated to free them of worms, especially stomach worms (strongylus haemonchus). When sheep are known to be infested with tapeworms starve them for 24 hours, then give each sheep one to two drams of freshly powdered kamala, washed down with water. After administering the medicine turn the sheep into a pen on the floor of which shavings have been spread to the depth of one inch or more. Keep the sheep there for 24 hours.

FARM FACTS

Pull out and burn all bean vines infested with rust.

Give special feeding and attention to hogs to be shown at fairs.

Whitewash looks good on the outside of poultry houses and pig pens, but on the inside it does good.

Testing cows is a good deal like matrimony from the man's viewpoint—you always get the best results if you humor every whim.

A bookkeeping system of the farm is like a speedometer on the flywheel; it tells you how fast you're going and lets you figure the costs.

A high producing dairy cow, or any dairy cow for that matter, should never be forced to drink water below a temperature of 55 degrees.

Don't let the woodlot be used as a grazing ground. The feet of the cattle bruise the roots at the base of the trees and this gives entrance to insects and disease spores.

CROWDED STREETCAR STRUCK BY TRAIN

Ten Killed and Two Score Injured at Chicago Crossing.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—A crowded streetcar was hit by a freight train at a grade crossing here, 10 persons losing their lives.

Conductor Olson stated he saw the tower man raise the gates and ran to the crossing. He looked in both directions, he stated, but did not see the approaching train and signaled the motorman to proceed. The first two cars of the train were gondolas and bore no lights, it is said. Joseph Brahe, 59, crossing watchman, was ordered held for the coroner's inquest after the policemen found the gate which protect the crossing intact after the accident, indicating, the said, that they had not been lowered to warn the car crew.

The victims were returning from a Halloween party and a number wore costumes. The dead: Mrs. Elizabeth Burns, Elmer Balanleth, Mrs. Mary Garrity and 4-year-old daughter Mary, Catherine Ruedhausen, Patrick O'Malley, Benjamin Cadalleri, William Welch, Dr. M. Shenkin and an unidentified woman. Two score were injured, several fatally.

KEEPING WELL

MORE SLEEP FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

BEN FRANKLIN wrote his Poor Richard's Almanac over one hundred and fifty years ago. One of the most frequently quoted sayings in it was the one about "early to bed and early to rise." How many people this advice has made wealthy and wise, no one can tell. Certainly every one who has gone to bed early has been made healthier thereby. It used to be no hardship for the boy or girl to go to bed. There wasn't anything else to do. But now the movies and the radio are a strong temptation, especially for school children.

In Sioux City, Iowa, the teachers found that the children were not getting enough sleep, so they started a "more sleep" campaign. They arranged to have the school physician and the superintendent talk to the parents on the need of more sleep for the children and the effect of too little sleep on the health, growth and school work of the children. A pledge was drawn up in which parents agreed to have their children in bed not later than 8:30 for grade pupils and nine o'clock for junior high pupils, five nights a week during the school year.

A house-to-house canvass was made; the superintendent offered a prize to the school which would secure the highest percentage of parents' signatures. Celluloid buttons, showing a clock face with the hands pointing to 8:30, were given to the children whose parents had signed the early-to-bed pledge.

Awful lot of bother, you say, to get children to go to bed early. Very true, but it is apparently necessary to make a game out of anything you want children to do. But the method didn't matter. It's the results that count. What were the results in Sioux City? Healthier and more alert children, better lessons at school, better-natured children at home.

The growing child needs plenty of sleep. The child that stays up half the night is tired, cross and dull the next day. See that your child gets plenty of sleep every night.

Coolidge's Suggestion.

Washington, Nov. 3.—President Coolidge in a letter to James A. Drain, national commander of the American Legion, suggested dedication of Armistice day, Nov. 11, to the establishment of permanent peace and the outlawry of war.

Blast Furnace Started.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 3.—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company started the fourth and last idle blast furnace in its East Youngstown group, raising the districts total to 21 active of 45.

Four persons were badly injured and others slightly hurt when the Great Northern Glacier park limited, No. 4, left the track about one mile south of Gardner, N. D.

Herbert Gillis, 35, patrolman, and Charles Pelton, a merchant and special policeman, lost their lives at Waukegan, Ill., when Gillis' motor cycle crashed into a barricade.

William Knorr, 45, a farmer, his mother, Mrs. William M. Knorr, 75, and a neighbor, William Siverton, were killed when a Southern railway train struck a motor car in which they were riding near Clark station, a Jefferson county, Kentucky.

Dr. John Timothy Geraghty, noted surgeon, died at Johns Hopkins hospital of abdominal trouble.

EAGLES WON ONE

The Eagle football team Sunday broke its non-win record by defeating the Potter Gager team of Columbus, at Mason's field by a score of 20 to 0. While the game was a decisive victory for the locals, it did not begin to show the real strength of the team as the boys did not display the drive and aggressiveness that they have shown in the last few preceding games. If they had displayed the same brand of ball that they played at Wellston on the Sunday before, the visitors would have had hard work securing a first down and at least five touchdowns could have been made.

The story of the game is all one sided. Anderson returned the first kickoff to the forty yard line, and the team then opened up and soon carried the ball to a position from which Weller could plunge over for the first score of the season. The goal kick was blocked and the score stood 6 to 0 at the end of the period with the ball in the center of the field.

In the third quarter another series of plays took the ball to the two yard line and Parker sneaked over for the second score and then kicked for the additional point. Score 13-0. At the end of the quarter Eagles held the ball on the 30 yard line.

In the first play of the final quarter Griffith pulled down a pass and went over for the final touchdown and Parker kicked the goal. With a safe score the Circleville team was replaced by several green men and the visitors made their only showing of the game taking the ball from their own 30 yard line to the five where the locals braced up and took the ball on downs and kicked it to safety. From this point on neither side threatened a score.

On next Sunday the Eagles go to Clarksburg to take on the undefeated team of that place and it is expected a large crowd of rooters will accompany them. The game Sunday was a financial loss, the gate receipts being insufficient to pay the visiting team.
